

OVER 500 MINERS THOUGHT LOST IN EXPLOSIONS

FOUR HELD IN LIQUOR RAIDS MADE TUESDAY

O'Gorke Home in Dixon and Franklin Homes Were Scenes

Sheriff Ward Miller and a force of deputies set out yesterday afternoon and conducted four raids in quick succession. The first of the series was at the home of Vincent J. O'Gorke, 1594 West Third Street. When the raiding party returned to the county jail they brought Miss Sylvia O'Gorke, 32, of Franklin Grove, who claimed to be O'Gorke's housekeeper. According to the officers, the woman refused to open the door when the party arrived and raned through the house, crawling into a hatch way to the garret, where she was found hiding behind a chimney.

The chase halted back to the county jail indicated that quite an extensive business had been conducted from the O'Gorke home, in the preparation of liquors, activity being confined largely to "Gordon" gin. Quite an outfit for the manufacture of liquors was taken to the jail.

O'Gorke was not at home at the time the officers arrived, but appeared shortly after the raid. Two officers took him in custody and he was taken to the county jail. O'Gorke and Miss O'Gorke were taken before Justice Grover V. Gehant today for preliminary hearings.

Raid in Franklin Several months ago the O'Gorke home was the scene of a raid in which a considerable amount of liquor was taken and he served a jail sentence for this offense.

The raiding party then went to Franklin Grove, where three raids were staged in rapid succession. The Jacob Oliphant home in the old brick hotel building was first visited but no arrests were made. The officers then visited the homes of Albert and George Jeangumut and brought both of them to the county jail. In Justice Grover Gehant's court last evening the Jeangumut brothers waived preliminary hearing on charges of violating the prohibition laws and were held to the grand jury under bonds of $1,000 each, which were furnished.

RAILROAD ASSN. STARTS MOVE TO END ACCIDENTS

Danger of Grade Crossings Theme for H. S. Essays

Chicago, March 30.—(AP)—The American Railway Association is going to start with the younger generation in a greater effort to cut down grade crossing accidents.

The organization today announced plans for a nation-wide contest among school and college students on the subject of how to prevent such mishaps.

One prize of $250 will be awarded for the best essay by a grammar student, a similar prize for the best essay by a high school student and a like amount for the best essay by a college student.

The essays must be terse, logical and concise, and must emphasize the need for greater care in approaching and passing over railroad crossings.

The essays are to be sent to J. C. Caviston, secretary of the Safety Section of the American Railway Association, at 39 Vesey street, New York, by not later than June 1.

Three persons of national reputation to be selected later will act as judges. Under the plan, class teachers in both grammar and high schools will select the best essays from their pupils and transmit them to their principal who will then select the best one from that school and send it to the Superintendent of Schools for the county or an equivalent officer. The County Superintendent will then select the best essay written by a grammar student and the best one written by a high school student in his county and will transmit them to the American Railway Association.

Colleges may follow the same procedure, except that each college or university, through its proper officer, may select one essay and transmit it direct to the American Railway Association.

In 1926 there were 5,321 highway grade crossing accidents in which 2,492 persons were killed and 6,931 injured. In 1925, there were 5,479 accidents in which 2,206 persons were killed and 6,555 injured.

Washington, March 30.—(AP)—The American Catholic Mission at Puchow is reported looted in a dispatch reaching Shanghai. Admiral Williams, commander of the American Asiatic squadron today advised the navy department.

BULLETIN

Shanghai, March 30.—(AP)—As the United States destroyer John D. Ford was on the way to Nanking yesterday it was fired on by nationalist troops and repelled with its four-inch guns and machine guns.

BULLETIN

Washington, March 30.—(AP)—Removal of Americans from the long reaches of the Yangtze river valley of China was continued today to the accompaniment of constant firing from the shore at destroyers and other ships of refuge.

Reporting on the situation in the region where conditions have been made most acute on the advance of the Cantonese nationalist armies, Rear Admiral Williams commanding the American forces in China, informed the navy department that the Cantonese were sending shots at the river craft from Nanking and from other points along the river.

Meanwhile there was apparent uneasiness over conditions at Wuhu in Anhwei Province where anti-foreign outbreaks such as that which took place at Nanking, were reported to be momentarily expected. Anti-foreign agitation was reported by Consul Swaney at Tsinanfu as having spread.

Chain of Factories to Make Silk, Etc. Out of Corn Stalks

Des Moines, Iowa, March 30.—(AP)—More than 300 plants scattered over the corn belt for conversion of 1,500,000 tons of corn stalks into artificial silk, lumber, substitutes, high grade paper and other cellulose products, are planned by the Euromerican Cellulose Products Corporation of New York. Charles K. Gardiner, representative of the corporation said here last night.

Des Moines may be chosen or location of the first plant to be established this year. Mr. Gardiner declared. If the first plant should be established at Peoria, or Cedar Rapids, where alternate sites have been chosen, the Des Moines plant will be started soon afterwards.

also to Shantung Province, heretofore held by the northern Chinese troops. Admiral Williams also reported the looting of the American Catholic Mission at Puchow, Kwantung province. It is believed his message referred to the same incident as was recorded in state department advices Monday which said a mission had been looted at Fuchow. The occupants escaped.

Several Chinese killed Chinese were killed when American and British ships opened fire to protect foreigners at Nanking was expressed in a report to the navy department today from Admiral Williams, commanding the American forces in China.

Inasmuch as the area fired upon is largely owned by foreigners, Admiral Williams said, "few Chinese live there and it is not believed any large number were killed. Such as were killed probably were either attacking foreigners or looting foreign property."

No shells were directed against the Chinese section of Nanking, the report adding, that the "effect of the firing not only was to rescue the American consul and his party, but other foreigners in the city, the bombardment brought instantaneous results, the admiral said, the foreigners being able to leave their position immediately."

ADVICE GOES UNHEEDED

Shanghai, Mar. 30.—(AP)—Approximately one hundred American missionaries are refusing to leave their posts in the Yangtze valley, notwithstanding the advice of the American authorities to do so.

The rest of the missionaries are either enroute to or will shortly leave for Shanghai where the international settlement is affording a haven of refuge from the fury or riotous mobs in the towns along the Yangtze river.

The United States Destroyer Hurler called at Nanking today and took off 47 American and British missionaries, who will go to Kluikang to await the first steamer.

Ask More Protection

The American Chamber of Commerce at Hankow has asked for more protection, but it is understood that official notification was sent that Americans there should leave instead of expecting protection.

In response to a consular call for protection the United States Destroyer William B. Preston has gone to Chefoo, in Shantung.

Although the Americans who have lived in Shanghai and those who have sought shelter here from interior points have every confidence in the defense forces now here, they are looking forward to the expected aid.

FATHER OF FREE MAIL DELIVERY DEAD THIS MORN

Perry S. Heath Made Rural Mail Delivery Possible

Washington, Mar. 30.—(AP)—Perry S. Heath, known as the "father of the rural free delivery" and for years prominent as an editor and publisher, died at his home here early today after an illness of more than six weeks.

A picturesque figure in the last quarter of the 19th century, as a newspaper man and prolific political writer, Mr. Heath entered the post office department in 1897 under President McKinley, and with less than $30,000 authorized by congress for experimental purposes, he started the first work on one of the greatest advancements in postal distribution in history.

When he resigned, three years later, as assistant postmaster general, the rural delivery service he had established was costing about $425,000 a year. In 1925 the cost was $1,000,000.

Born at Muncie, Ind., Aug. 31, 1857, Heath, at the age of 21, established the daily paper in Muncie and later gave Aberdeen, S. D., its first daily paper.

After leaving the postal service, he acted as secretary of the republican national committee; arbitrated the government fight over telegraph rates, bought and published the Salt Lake Tribune and established the Salt Lake Telegram in 1902.

SUSPENSION ALL WORK IN MINES OF STATE SURE

Will Come at Midnight Tomorrow: Miners Ready to Loaf

BULLETIN

Springfield, Ill., March 30.—(AP)—Thirty Illinois coal mines will continue operation under the Jacksonville wage scale agreement, Harry Fishwick, president of District Number 12 of the United Mine Workers announced this morning.

Chicago, Mar. 30.—(AP)—Midnight tomorrow will usher in a shut down in Illinois coal fields predicted to be 100 per cent effective, unless miners make a proposal acceptable to operators in the interim. The suspension will stop labors of 72,000 miners in 150 mines.

Directors of the Illinois Coal Operators' association have made a statement on the situation after their meeting today. President Rice Miller announced last night.

Mr. Miller said the walkout will effect approximately 150,000 coal diggers in the central competitive field. He did not believe that miners in the unorganized field, which he estimated produces 70 per cent of the country's bituminous coal consumption, will join the suspension April 1.

Already, miners in Franklin, Williamson and Saline counties of Illinois are planning for the summer of idleness they anticipate.

The work at the collieries today seemed to go on about as usual but the monthly production of almost 3,000,000 tons will be interrupted at midnight tomorrow unless a new wage scale agreement can be proposed by the miners and accepted by the operators in the meanwhile.

Negotiations between the United

Condition of Roads of Illinois Shown on Map at The Telegraph

A new service for readers of The Telegraph has been installed at this office, which it is hoped will prove of benefit to autoists of this vicinity. A week road service has been contracted for which will show the condition of main arteries of travel throughout the state.

A large map of the state, the editorial office of this paper, corrected weekly, will show detours, conditions of such, etc. on all of the main roads of the state, and readers are invited to call and get the latest information from this map whenever they so desire.

Mike Korkers of America and the National Association of Operators to fix a new wage scale contract in place of the one recently lapsed broke down at Miami, Fla. Then President John L. Lewis of the mine workers suggested that pending a settlement of difficult separate agreements be made within the various districts. The Illinois Mine Operators refused to make any arrangement that involved continuance of mining at their present wage scale, which they asserted rendered them unable to compete with the product of nearby non-union mines.

In Other Coal States President George Heaps, Jr. of the Iowa Coal Mine Operators Association, predicted that Iowa mines, like those in Illinois, would close tomorrow.

Indiana miners today were preparing to enter negotiations with operators there for continuance of mining, but what results might be expected could not be predicted.

Mr. Miller said the mines in the competitive field which also includes western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and a section of Iowa will also shut down as the miners agreement with the operators expires April 1. The miners are standing pat for a week and a day on a day wage scale and the operators aver they cannot operate their mines on that basis and compete with non-union fields.

FOUR MEN SHOT TO DEATH LAST EVE IN CHICAGO

Eleven Children are Made Fatherless Result of Shootings

Chicago, March 30.—(AP)—Four men were shot to death here last night within an hour, making eleven children fatherless.

John Palumbo, 39, a contractor, and his assistant, Jack Prete were killed in their homes by Joseph Clemente, 39, who had lost his job and thought his family would starve.

A fourth man, Frank Palumbo, was shot and killed in his automobile by unidentified assailants. He is not related to John Palumbo, police said.

Clemente lost his job and went gunning for his employer. He found him sitting at his evening supper, listening to the prayers of his four children. He opened fire and slew Palumbo. Clemente then raced to the home of Prete and leveling a pistol over Prete's shoulder, he fired three shots and killed him.

Police found Clemente entrenched behind a push cart in the yard of a relative. Clemente fired a volley, missed and raced for a shed. Two volleys from police guns struck him. He was dead when police found him inside the shed where he had dragged himself.

Feeders of Lincoln Park Animals Go Out on Strike

Chicago, March 30.—(AP)—If the gentle sleepers of Chicago in the vicinity of Lincoln Park were awakened this morning by a loud "woof woof," they can blame union men employed by the Lincoln Park board who went out on a sympathetic strike for higher wages.

The deep throaty growl was the lion who hadn't had his meat. And the barking was the dog that who had not had his early morning ration of hay.

President Jerry Donovan and Business Agent Michael Witek, of the Public Service Teamsters & Chauffeurs, local number 733, said the animals would go without their feed unless the board acceded to their demands for increased wages.

Hand cuffs which had been locked to Thompson's hands were momentarily released when he asked permission to go in the wash room. The train was going at a rate of 50 miles an hour.

PENNSYLVANIA, ILLINOIS MINES SCENES OF TRAGIC DISASTERS DURING TODAY

Eight Miners Caught in Blast at Harrisburg, Ill.

Harrisburg, Ill., March 30.—(AP)—Eight miners were entombed and believed to have been killed in a gas explosion today in the Saline County Coal Corporation's mine Number 2 at Ledford, five miles south of here. Three other miners were injured by the blast. The 300 other men in the mine were all accounted for.

The blast occurred when a pocket of gas was ignited in a section of the mine two miles from the bottom of the shaft. The mine rescue team from Eldorado arrived soon after the explosion and started to close off the scene.

Abandon All Hope. Two rescuers were overcome by after damp and were rushed to the surface where they regained consciousness.

Rescue workers said they had no doubt the eight men were killed outright by the blast, which was of such force as to hurl three miners to the ground 500 yards away. There was only slight hope, they said, that if the men escaped the blast they could have made their way to the back of the mine.

A crowd estimated at 2500 soon gathered at the mine opening and relatives anxiously awaited word as to the fate of the men. There were many scenes of weeping as miners came up safely.

Mine officials said gas had accumulated in a pocket near the entry and was touched off, presumably by an open light used by miners.

The eight entry men behind the gas and believed to have been killed are Joe Toth, William Fisher, Claude Lynch, George Ambros, and Cecil Reynolds, all of Ledford, and Leo Morris of Carrier Mills, leaders: Simon Shmitts of Ledford, track layer and Peter Morris of Ledford, airman.

Two badly burned. Audie Lynch and Roscoe Rebo, shift workers fifteen hundred feet from the explosion, were the first to be brought from the mine. They were hurled down by the explosion and were badly burned and injured by flying timbers.

John Wunderlich, bottom boss, who was some eighteen hundred feet from the explosion, was knocked down and was unable to move. He was rescued by the mine rescue team from Eldorado.

Rescue workers were hampered by the danger of after damp and it was believed several hours might elapse before they could reach the men imprisoned and believed dead.

The mine rescue team from Eldorado numbered 25 men and was working full handed today.

SPEEDER IS FINED HERE. Harry Richards, driver of a Chicago taxi cab, was fined $25 and costs on a charge of speeding by Justice J. O. Shaulls last evening. Richards and a party of friends were driving to visit friends.

That is the creation of a strong public sentiment against it. Efforts to unearth what the organization considers the remaining weapon will be made at a public mass meeting here tonight.

Major General Milton J. Foreman will preside. The speakers will include Mayor David Honan of Milwaukee, the city that deliberately set about to reduce crime and is credited with being successful; Edward E. Gore, president of the Chicago Crime Commission and Judge Marcus Kavanaugh, judge of the Superior court here.

"Crime is well organized in Illinois," said John M. Glenn, secretary of the gathering. "It is hydra-headed. It is better organized than most political parties. The leaders of the underworld have unlimited funds. The tentacles of the crime octopus reach in every direction."

"Nearly everything else has been done in an effort to prevent crimes. The situation has been analyzed. A strong public sentiment is all that is needed to make criminals hunt their holes."

More than fifty civic organizations, clubs, industrial and commercial associations are cooperating with the Illinois Manufacturers Association in the meeting. Thirty judges, a dozen state attorneys and other officials will occupy seats on the stage.

Judges W. E. Viner, Morris, Grundy county, and Ralph C. Austin, Joliet, Will County, and Supreme Court Justice Frederic R. De Young are among the jurists who accepted invitations to attend.

The WOMAN'S DAY

by AILENE SUMNER

"Then one night Edward came home with a $10 radio set when we had been going hungry for days." This line pops out in the story of Vivian Ingram, "the bandit queen" who terrorized a midwestern city by rifling filling station cash drawers to the tune of a dozen a night. Vivian blames her downfall to her marriage to a $20-a-week clerk. She tells of the dresses and hats she made over, of the meals she missed, and then of the husband who came home with the radio. Vivian's story is no new story. It is the other thing that "every woman knows," the almost nigardly economy of wives only the husbands may come home with autos and radios and complete sets of illustrated encyclopedias. We are "the tight sex."

FIVE BABIES DIE
Five newly-born babies in a Chicago hospital died because nurses mistook boric acid solution for drinking water and fed the eye-wash solution to the infants. "Criminal negligence," say some. Maybe so, but it is a rare nurse and a rare doctor who at some time during his or her career does not make the mistake that could be called "criminal negligence."

Any worker is only human, and no human can never make a mistake. We hear a great deal about inflated salaries of nurses and doctors. Perhaps one reason is the fact that they work in a realm of frightful responsibility. The stenographer's mistake can be corrected with an eraser. The doctor's or nurse's mistake means death and can never be corrected. A worker in this field needs iron nerve, and is paid for it.

THE WHISKERED MAN
Nine years ago J. E. Boyle of Texas "turned on" women. He was "through forever." His physician told him that if he would raise a beard, women would leave him alone. J. E. has not shaved since. He says that it worked like a charm; that whiskers are to a man what a avoidance is to a woman when it comes to keeping the opposite sex away. But there are any number of those who say that in this day of h. c. l. when keeping a family is a real economic job, most women are only too glad to wish it off onto a man, that even whiskers couldn't keep a man so immune from the feminine wiles.

SEPARATE CARS
Separate cars for men and women in New York subways, and for that matter, on even the L and buses, are called for by no less a well-known light than our Almoee from the gold-en strands of California. Almoee says that "girls must go through hell to get to work and home," and that "subways are the mashers' playgrounds." I would love to wise-crack at Almoee, but no one who has ridden in a New York subway at 6 p. m. or 8 a. m. and kept their eyes "peeled," can deny that something should be done.

KING SAYS, "NOT NICE"
King George VI of all the Britains, riding in a land where everybody rides with hounds, doesn't like to see women riding astride, and asks for a return of the side-saddle method. Well, old's bodkins, the selfish old brute! I'd like to see the kink keep his hams upon his prancing steed, perched there like a fly on a steep wall, a la side saddle method! The things that men and kings wish upon women but would never do themselves, such as long hair, et al.

NO TWINS, TRIPLETS!
Charles Atkins of London took out twins insurance. His wife had a daughter. Papa Atkins thought the insurance sheet faulty and dropped it. Now he's papa to a new set of triplets. How the insurance companies will cash in on this "you never can tell story!" Bet it makes you renew that accident and health policy you never got anything out of!

ANOTHER BUBBLE SMASHED.

Somewhat this life is full of disappointments, and our oldest and fondest illusions all get smashed up sooner or later. This gloomy remark is caused by a little story from Tulsa, Okla., where chorus girls went on strike because their wages of $15 weekly were not enough to live on. They won the strike and a $2.50 raise.

Thus perishes another illusion.

We had always supposed that mere matters like food and drink were not among the major worries of a hard-working chorine. Never having enjoyed any first-hand information on the matter, we had imagined that the life of the chorus girl was just one round of fun; in the evening dancing about behind the footlights—and later on, mebbe, gay parties and all that.

But it seems that the chorus girl, like all the rest of us, often has a hard time keeping the wolf from the stage door. "The life of a chorus girl is a hard one," one of the Tulsa fair ones is quoted as saying. "You see, we have to have decent street wardrobes so that when the audience sees us on the street the character of our show won't suffer. Clothes cost money, and when you finish paying your board and room at the end of the week and replenish your stock of cosmetics, there is little left for the glad rags."

And another adds:

"These stories about the loose life of the chorus are all the bunk. Since I have been in the chorus I have heard a lot about the 'fast life,' but the only place I find any speed is in the girls trying to make their weekly pay checks cover the ground they must cover."

Well, so be it. Somehow we're sorry to hear it. No more, when we sit in the audience at a musical show, can we pretend that the gayly clad (or otherwise) damsels across the footlights are care-free butterflies. We shall be oppressed by the thought that some of them, doubtless, need shoes, and that others have not had a square meal all week.

It's really too bad.

MIGHTY PROPAGANDA.

The pen, as the old saying has it, is mightier than the sword. And so is the typewriter.

The Chinese Nationalist forces know this, and consequently are sweeping everything before them.

Why did Shanghai fall? By force of arms? Not at all. Propaganda did the trick. The fighting for possession of Shanghai has been mild compared with the battles of the World War. Shanghai fell because the propaganda of the Nationalists had undermined it from within.

In China today the pen is winning more victories than the sword. Considering the magnitude of the operations, the bloodshed is surprisingly light.

China has learned the value of propaganda.

EDNA, DO YOU MEAN IT?

If the regime of prohibition continues to spread, food will be the next thing banned, Edna Ferber told a Yale audience the other night. Well, maybe that's the only way we'll ever get around to home cooking again. . . . The ban on food would just suit some of the ladies who have quit eating, anyhow. . . . Maybe if some people had to take their soup in a speak-easy they'd not be so boisterous about it. . . . It is high time something were done about the men who go around overfeeding their vests. . . . If food prohibition does come, the sheiks can forget their hip flasks and start stringing their belts with doughnuts.

NO "PLAY-TIME" JOB.

The United States forest ranger has a fine job, but it isn't exactly play.

The Department of Agriculture is protesting against the activities of various correspondence schools which offer to fit people for forest rangers' jobs. These schools, complains the department, represent the ranger as a chap who has little to do but live in the open, ride a spirited horse and stand about picturesquely on the slopes and crags of the Rockies.

The reality is far otherwise. A forest ranger has a task of great responsibility, requiring plenty of back-breaking work and a good deal of real executive ability. If that's what you want, go to it. But if you're looking for a romantic existence under the big trees, with little to do, you'd better try something else.

When Gene Tunney was in Los Angeles Jack Dempsey invited him over to his hotel for breakfast. Stealing the White House stuff?

Annie Nichols gave Edward Payson Weston a life income. A few days later the aged walker was hit by a taxicab. It's nice Weston will be able to hire a lawyer, anyhow.

The big question before Congress about elevating guns seems to have been answered promptly over the neighborhood of Shanghai.

The ten chief causes of crime were named by a New York crime commission the other day. However, the commission overlooked the man who tells you he takes a cold bath every morning.

words to the defendant?" Banning persisted.

"No, I cannot, but I have given you the gist of the conversation on Mr. Cluny's part, in reference to this will."

"And what did this defendant answer?" Banning went on, with a diabolical glance of triumph at Stephen Churchill.

CONFESSIONS OF WASHINGTON WIVES

BEING INTIMATE STORIES OF THE WOMAN'S SIDE OF OFFICIAL LIFE IN THE CAPITAL

BY ALLENE SUMNER CHAPTER XVIII

Washington—The movies have their Will Hays.

The world of baseball has its Kene-saw Mountain Landis.

The stage has its Winthrop Ames.

The blaring, blatant world of the saxophones has its Julian Abeles, and the world social of the nation's capital has its Helen Ray Hagner, who in some respects wields more power and molds more destinies in this city than the president himself.

Mrs. Hagner draws no formal $75,000 annually as a recognized Czar of Society, but her informal earnings as director of Washington's most famous social bureau of this city are her own business, and it's a safe wager that her business pays handsome dividends.

First ladies of the land and the newest, "greenest" congressmen's wife are Mrs. Hagner's clients.

So No One Will Be Slighted

She is called to the White House to scrutinize the place cards in the state dining room and see if anyone will get mad and go home because he or she is not properly seated. That same day she may watch the destinies of a $500 debutante tea which she has planned.

She may sell her very exclusive "invitation list" to the sponsors of a charity ball or musicale and the next hour she may teach a young congresswoman what she should know about such things as which, and how many, if any, corners of her cards should be turned down, what to say when introduced to the president of the United States, and how to refuse champagne at a diplomatic dinner, if she wants to.

The Best Foot Forward

There is no city in the world where "putting ones best foot forward" is so important as here, and no city in the world where it is so easy "to put one's foot in it."

And because of the importance of social life in the world official, a woman new to this city's ways may wear the same dress twice and use milk on her oatmeal, but she will hire the services of a social secretary.

Which is just where Mrs. Hagner comes in. She tells who to invite and what to invite them to. She plans the menu and hires the check girls and butlers. And, most important of all, she seats the guests according to due rank, in order that wars may not result from a fancied "insult" to another nation's representative. If he is not seated as near the official host as he believes he should be.

Like a War Map

Mrs. Hagner's "date book" is more important than the calendar to Washington, from the White House down. House down. No one gives a party until the big piece of cardboard with black pins over it which hangs in this social bureau's office is consulted. The black pins are "doings." The great

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

Poor Mother Hubbard's hungry hound was shortly looking all around. He hadn't had a single bite since very early morn. The cupboard, 'course, was very bare, because there was no food in there. The Tines didn't blame the dog for looking quite forlorn.

Old Mother said, "I can't arrange to buy him bones. I have no change. I wonder if you Tines know the best thing to be done." The Tines thought, and thought, and thought. Said Scouty, "Well, we can't be caught by such a simple question. Then he soon was on the run."

"Where are you going?" Copy cried. "I'll be right back when I have tried a dandy plan," yelled Scouty, as he disappeared from sight. The others wondered where he went, and when an hour of time was spent, he came rushing in the house. He'd met success all right.

Said he, "I've brought meat for the pup."

The dog, right quickly ate it up. Then Mother Hubbard smiled and asked, "Where did you get the meat?" "Oh, that was easy," Scouty said, "I knew the poor dog must be fed, and so I bought it at a store, a short ways down the street."

Then Mother Hubbard told them all to run out in her long front hall. "You'll see a sight to make you laugh. Go right ahead," said she. The Tines did as they were told. They knew that no one there would scold. And, in the hall they found a clock as big as it could be.

Just as they reached the queer old clock, they heard it going tickety tock. Then, as it struck the hour of one, a mouse ran down its side. Old Mother Hubbard laughed aloud to watch the frightened little crowd. The mouse had scared the Tynmites. "Oh, save us," Clowny cried.

(The Tynmites find Ba, Ba, Black Sheep in the next story.)

fense, the will was then read into the evidence, the significant clause being:

"And to Charity Amanda Lane, my beloved fiancée, I hereby bequeath unconditionally the sum of one hundred thousand dollars if cash, in the event of my death on or before the twenty-fifth day of November, nineteen hundred and twenty-six. I hereby bequeath over any and all other bequests made in this, my last will and testament."

"That was a temporary will, designed to protect Mr. Cluny's fiancée in case of his death before his marriage to her?" Banning asked.

"So he stated to me," Neff answered. "In fact, he furnished me data for another will which I drew up on November twenty-fourth last, and which Mr. Cluny intended to sign immediately after his marriage to Miss Lane at nine o'clock on November twenty-fifth."

"Now, Mr. Neff, I want to ask you if, to your own personal knowledge, Miss Cherry Lane, as this defendant was the known, knew of the existence of this will?"

Neff answered with great positiveness: "She did. She was a guest in Mr. Cluny's home on Sunday evening, October twenty-fifth, and he, in my presence, showed her a folded copy of this will and told her that she was named in it, advising her as to the terms under which the bequest was made, but not mentioning the sum."

"Can you repeat Mr. Cluny's exact

SAINT and SINNER

When Faith and Bob returned to the courtroom the next morning they passed Mrs. Seymour Albright, who, before her marriage, had been Alice Cluny, only daughter of Ralph Winston Cluny, for whose murder Cherry was being tried.

"Aunt Alice has made it quite plain that it is war to the death," Bob whispered. "I suppose Banning is going to call her this afternoon, and she wants it distinctly understood that Robert Lee Hathaway is no longer considered a member of the Cluny clan. As far as I am concerned, the Cluny clan is damned. The only decent one of the bunch was Uncle Ralph—and he's dead."

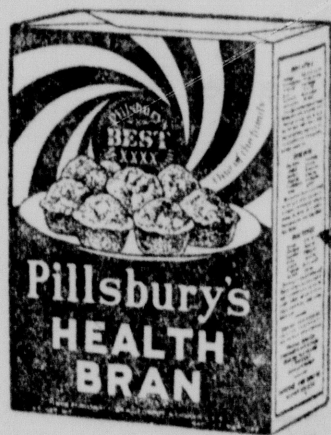

"Poor Bob," Faith whispered, "we have put you in a terrible position."

Contrary to Bob's expectations, Mrs. Albright was not the first witness. As soon as Judge Grimshaw had taken his place, Banning called Charles Kelly Neff, the dead man's law partner, to the stand.

Banning's first significant question, after preliminaries, was: "Did you, on or about the twenty-sixth day of October last, draw up a last will and testament for the late Ralph Winston Cluny?"

"I did," Neff answered and drew a folded legal-looking document from his breast pocket.

"You have that signed and witnessed with you, Mr. Neff?"

Coughs Stopped Almost Instantly

A famous physician's prescription called Thoxine relieves the most stubborn coughs that otherwise would hang on for weeks. Acts on new theory, relieves the inflammation and irritation which is almost always the cause of the cough, and stops it like magic. Thoxine is equally good for sore throat for which purpose it is far superior to gargles. Contains no opium, chloroform or harmful drugs. Once used you will never be without it. Pleasant taste and safe for children. Remember one swallow stops night coughs or sore throat within 15 minutes or money back. 35c, 60c, and $1.00. Rowland's Pharmacy and all good druggists.—Adv.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS WESTERNERS IN LEAD IN U. OF C. HIGH SCHOOL MEET

All But One Team from South Beaten During First Day

Chicago, Mar. 30.—(AP)—The east-west struggle which dotted the opening rounds of the National Inter-scholastic basketball tournament here were decided in favor of the westerners in the opening round of competition at the University of Chicago. All but one southern squad yesterday went down in defeat, the Vienna, Ga., team standing out as a foe to be reckoned with in the later rounds.

Vienna today meets another of the teams which stood out prominently in the first day, Winfield, Kas., one of the heaviest and most finished teams of the 43 which began the elimination series yesterday morning.

Seventeen of the teams went into the second round today with a virtual bye in the first round while the thirteen losers began their consolation round for trophies, similar but smaller, to those going to the victors in the championship series.

The brief hour of fame for the Alpine, Tenn., squad from a mountain hamlet of 75 persons was cut short by Lincoln, Neb., in a 71-9 landslide.

Yesterday's results:

Safford, Ariz. 30; Franklin, N. H. 20.

London, Ky. 15; Muscatine 12.

Lincoln, Neb. 71; Alpine, Tenn. 9.

Huron, S. D. 22; Greenville, S. C. 20.

Grand Works, N. D. 28; Walte High, Toledo, Ohio, 21.

Fairmont W. Va. 20; Tallahassee, Ala. 13.

Morton High, Cicero, Ill. 29; Durant, Okla. 13.

Winfield, Kas. 29; Aberdeen, S. D. 25.

Buy "Quick Fire Coke" Now—Get More Heat For Less Money

It is a Clean Fuel

"QUICK FIRE COKE" will reduce the fuel bill in any furnace heated home, it is safer and cleaner, and requires fewer firings per day than soft coal.

"QUICK FIRE COKE" is high in carbon, low in the elements of no value, ash, with no smoke or soot. This latter you buy and pay for when you use soft coal.

In making "QUICK FIRE COKE" the most advanced scientific process is used to extract all of the heating elements and eliminate those that make soot, gas and dirt when soft coal is burned in a furnace; thus it makes a steady, long lasting fire.

There is no wasted heating value in this famous by-product coke. It is a high quality heat producing carbon that burns with perfect combustion and leaves little ash.

No matter how long "QUICK FIRE COKE" is stored in bins, or piled up out of doors, it never deteriorates or loses its heat value. When buying your next supply of fuel you will save much money by insisting upon this dependable by-product coke and take no other. Be sure to use the registered trade name "QUICK FIRE COKE" when you order. It indicates the highest possible quality of by-product coke. It usually costs no more than the ordinary kinds of coke, but it goes much farther and gives more uniform and lasting heat. The Indiana Consumers Gas and By-Products Co., Terre Haute, Ind., exclusive makers of this superior coke, send to any householders, on request an interesting booklet on "HOW TO BURN COKE." Write for it today.

Remember "QUICK FIRE COKE" is not merely a trade-mark, but a guarantee of efficiency, quality and value.

"QUICK FIRE COKE" is sold and recommended by

U. of I. Baseball Team to Start Work

BY A. A. TOOTHAKER

The University of Michigan far outclassed any of her rivals in the annual Big Ten conference swimming meet held last Friday and Saturday in the new swimming pool at the University of Illinois. The score was the largest ever made in a Big Ten championship meet. Minnesota finished 16 points in the rear of the victors to get second place. Michigan took seven out of the nine events and gathered a total of 49 points.

Less than two weeks remain before the University of Illinois baseball team starts on its annual spring training trip to the sunny South. HOW EXPERTS JUDGE CIGARS

Men who know cigars judge quality on five points: (1) Burn; (2) Aroma; (3) Flavor or taste; (4) Color; (5) Workmanship. Which do you count the most important?

In our own organization there is no complete agreement as to which feature is the main reason for the growing popularity of San Felice at 5c. Is it the blend or its mildness or other qualities? Try one and judge it point by point. What feature do you think is responsible for the amazing increase in demand for San Felice—a demand which has doubled and trebled? Perhaps it is the mild zesty cigar you are looking for. It costs only 5c to find out. So try a San Felice today—then you'll know.

Gentlemen:
"I have been so profoundly impressed with the superior qualities of Iso = Vis as a cold weather lubricant that I am pleased to drop you a few lines in commendation of the new lubricant marvel. Have been using Iso = Vis throughout my Buick 48 and at 12 below zero had not the slightest difficulty with the lubricated parts of my car.

"I certainly hope that your success with Iso = Vis is 100%, as it has served me 100% and fulfilled a long-needed want.

Sincerely yours,
(Jan. 8, 1927) J. E. Packer"

Iso = Vis "fulfills a long-needed want" by solving the old problem of dilution. It maintains constant viscosity—never thins out—always lubricates efficiently! Try Iso = Vis—and you'll praise it, too! 30 cents per quart is a trifle higher price than for ordinary oil—but the cost per mile is a whole lot lower!

What Is a Diuretic?

People Are Learning the Value of Occasional Use.

EVERYONE knows that a laxative stimulates the bowels. A diuretic performs a similar function to the kidneys. Under the strain of our modern life, our organs are apt to become sluggish and require assistance. More and more people are learning to use Doan's Pills, occasionally, to insure good elimination which is so essential to good health. More than 50,000 grateful users have given Doan's signed recommendations. Scarcely a community but has its representation. Ask your neighbor!

Take Salts If Rheumatism is Bothering You

Tells Rheumatism Sufferers to Take Salts to Get Rid of Toxic Acid.

Rheumatism is no respecter of age, sex, color or rank. If not the most dangerous of human afflictions it is one of the most painful. Those subject to rheumatism should eat no sweets for awhile, dress as warmly as possible, avoid any undue exposure and above all, drink lots of pure water.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid or body waste matter, and is often generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this poison from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this toxic acid, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain, called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is helpful to neutralize acidity, remove waste and stimulate the kidneys, thus helping to rid the blood of these rheumatic poisons.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

Secret of Its Longer Life

THE BIGGEST FACTOR in the life of a battery is the ruggedness and strength of the "separators" between the positive and negative plates. Therefore, a great, new improvement in "separators" means a great, new improvement in batteries. By triple-reinforcing separators made of candled Port Orford Cedar (admittedly the best material), with strong, vulcanized rubber ribs, Prest-O-Lite now solves the battery maker's most stubborn problem.

The staunch, vulcanized rubber ribs act as effective buffers between the wood separators and the metal plates—thus giving to the most vulnerable part of a battery the proved ability to actually outwear the plates themselves.

As a result of this new added life, your Prest-O-Lite Rubberib battery will be cheerfully and confidently guaranteed by the Prest-O-Lite company through us.

Matinee Ladies

"MATINEE LADIES," with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Bob Ward, college student, gets work as a dancing partner for rich women in a New Jersey roadhouse. At the Inn he meets the prettiest, sweetest girl he has ever laid eyes on—Sally, the cigarette girl. Reciprocating his interest, she swears him against the mysterious and beautiful Mrs. Hammond, habitue of the Inn, who finds her "thrill" in "hunting" Bob for her loveliest apartment. Bob, taking Sally home, finds Mrs. Smith hostile; and learns he has a rival.

Thus delivering herself of the news that the favored Tom Mannion was going to call on Sally, Mrs. Smith, with a brief nod toward Bob, turned and disappeared into the house. Bob felt sorry for Sally—sorry for the flames in her cheeks. He tried to quench the latter with a genial, dissembling smile; but Sally was too deeply hurt, too close to the point of tears, to be readily consoled. She insisted upon explaining away her mother's hostility; "Mother's very strict, Bob. She really doesn't mean anything by seeming so cross, but she's so afraid I'll meet someone at the Inn who isn't—good for me!" Which was nothing like what Mrs. Smith—who even now was concealed behind the curtain of the inner vestibule door, peering and eavesdropping—really felt. Mrs. Smith's true concern was to get for Sally a man with money. As a mother, she was neither original, or even rare in this desire. But, perhaps, her efforts were a little cruder than the average. Mrs. Smith had allowed Sally to take the job—encouraged and aided her, in fact—at the Palladium because she felt that the oppor-

"Yes, I do like him—as a friend," tumbles there for the girl to meet a man with a great deal of money were good. But Sally had disappointed her! Hon. Thomas Mannion, Esquire, was balm to Mrs. Smith, though. There was a man for you! A member of the neighborhood church to which Sally went, a member in excellent standing and influence of Tammany Hall, and an attorney of growing note. Still in his early thirties, and an important figure among the elect of the city's court and council chambers. And madly in love with Sally Smith, whom he had met at a church social, and had rushed ever since. To Mrs. Smith's great delight—if not to Sally's. All of which was why Mrs. Smith had had seven kinds of conviction fits when Sally came walking home with a young man whose penny shine from each well-worn elbow, from every hint of his overpressed and overold garmenture. That was why Mrs. Smith was sniffling behind the inner door now—the while she silenced the Smith boys with the rattle of a long, bony forefinger that was not to be lightly disobeyed; and the while her incandescent mind was making up a sarcastic barrage with which to ridicule and beat down Sally's interest in this poor looking fellow (if she had an interest in him) as soon as she had left him and entered the house. Meanwhile, Bob and Sally were fighting through the third and longest of the awkward silences that had oppressed them since they reached the home steps. Then Bob asked, hesitantly, diffidently—yet most anxiously: "Sally, who is this Mr. Mannion, may I ask?" Sally, who knew her mother's tricks of old, lowered her voice to a whisper and explained reluctantly: "Oh, just a man—a big lawyer and politician from Seventy-second Street—who has been calling around a good bit to see me. Mother likes him."

It was a far cry, from the quaint little flower girl of the gaudy Inn to a neighborhood belle of New York's middle West side. Bob, just a bit dizzy from trying to orient his reactions and his emotions, could not bring himself to think of Sally in any other way than as the dear little Dresden doll, as she had first burst upon his vision. He could not—or, at least, did not want to—level her to prosaic realism; to the matter-of-fact things of every day life. Falling head over heels in love with her, in the impetuously and glittering confidence of youth, it had never occurred to him that perhaps there was someone already established in her affections and company. Sally had looked just too virginal to be thought of as having been.

Had Bob just gone charging up an already crowded lane? Was there really not a dream ahead of him—was there, after all, only a social and financial difference between falling for Sally Smith and falling for Mrs. Hammond? Was there no idealism involved? Bob held his breath, and his heart almost stopped in its thumping, as he looked full and fearfully into her eyes and asked:

"Do you like Mr. Mannion, Sally?" He wistfully hung on her answer. "Yes," she said in a low tone. "Yes, I do like him—as a friend. She saw the growing of a stricken look in Bob's eyes, and hastened to explain: "But I could never think of him in any other way than as a friend!" Bob's eyes cleared at once. The fresh, healthy grin stole back and dimpled the corners of his strong mouth.

"Is there any one else you could think of as—more than a friend?" Now if anyone else had asked her that, any of the neighborhood boys, for instance, little Sally Smith would have banteringly retorted, "Wouldn't you like to know!"—or some equally pert remark. But with this big, handsome boy it was all so different from anything Sally had ever known. She felt, by the telepathy of love's sensitiveness, that she could safely be frank and self-revealing with Bob Ward. He inspired the truth. He inspired levity of spirits—but not of emotions. So little Sally Smith said very bravely:

"The precious twinkle in Sally's eyes told Bob that there was small cause for alarm in her admission, so far as he was concerned. "How long have you known this—err-r person?" he asked with mock severity. "Since about two-thirty this afternoon!" said little Sally Smith, so softly.

Her cheeks were pink with quickened blood, but her eyes shone fearlessly into his. For perhaps a full half-minute they just looked at each other, intoxicated by the miracle the glorious Spring afternoon had wrought. Then impulsively Bob chuckled, in that queer, rumbling, deep way of his; and thrust out a big hand, into the palm of which Sally's tiny one was gently engulfed.

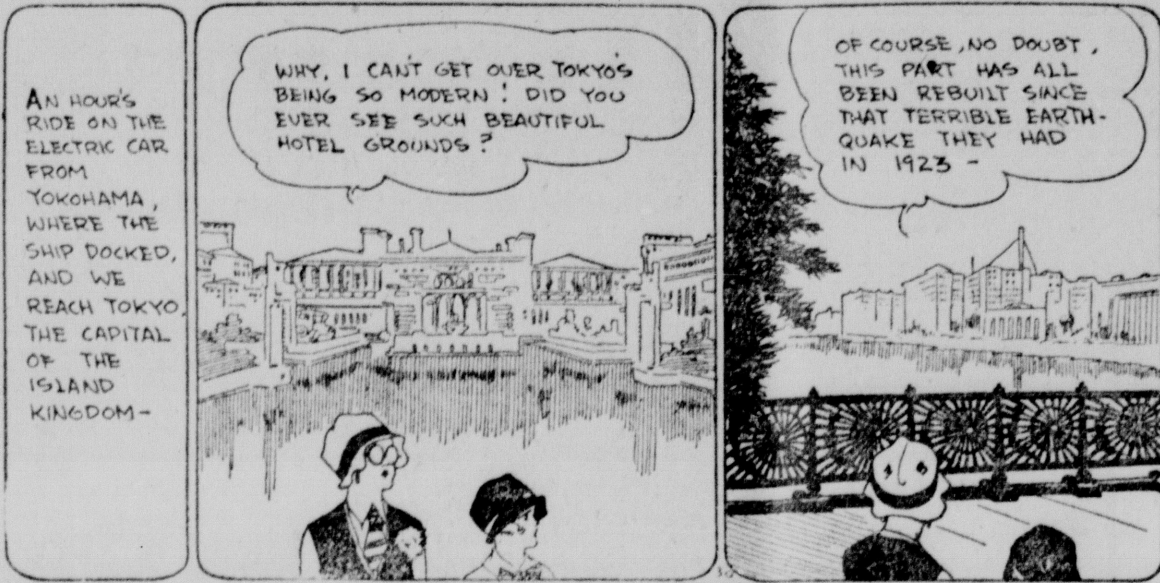

"Goodbye, little Sally Smith!" he exclaimed light-heartedly. "I'll see you tomorrow, and we'll ride home together again—okay?" "Okay!" she smiled. And then she was gone—swallowed up into the gloomy hall behind the grilled door; exposed to the verbal assaults of her acridulous mother, harassed by the reflection that Bob Ward was not alone going to see her on the following day, as he had so blithely promised; but that he was also going to see Mrs. Hammond.

Meantime, Bob, too, had gone—down the steps and away up the street; beset by a gnawing uneasiness at the pit of his stomach because of the unfriendliness of Sally's mother; uncomfortable with the knowledge that there were other fellows with their eyes on Sally Smith. He had romantically thought that no drabness could touch the life of so goddess-like a creature as little Sally Smith; he had thought that such as she could only be produced by an environment and kin of the finest sort. It was Bob's first collision with the natural law that oftentimes the fairest flower rears its lovely head from the meanest sargasso heap. And he was rudely shocked. About Mannion he was not over-concerned. Such was the ego of his youth, and such was his trust in the assurances given to him by Sally's own unstained lips.

And so, little Sally Smith, despite the annoyances of home and kin and caller, tread blithesomely on air this night. When her combed-honey head touched its fortune pillow, it was to dream of a giant noble Hero Prince, who slew dragons right and left, and presented to her, his Princess, the ogling head of the bad old witch, Mrs. Hammond, on a cigarette tray.

LIGHTERS of MIDAS

THIS HAS HAPPENED

T. Q. CURTIS, wealthy department store owner, prepares a questionnaire to be answered by all the women of his store. BILLY WELLS answers the questions because she hopes to get one of the cash prizes offered for the best replies. She does so, however, over the protests of CLAY CURTIS, son of the store owner. Clay has disinherited himself and is now living with the Wells family, working at a factory by day and writing music at night. Billy believes that Clay suspects his father of some scheme. Billy herself wonders what "old T. Q." is "up to."

Billy is disgusted when she hears two girls in the store discussing the answers to their questionnaire. NYDIA LOMAX lies to gain the old man's favor, saying her ambition is to become a kindergarten teacher, when everyone knows she hates children. WINNIE SHELTON says she wants to take a business course in order to become private secretary to a "big business man like Mr. Curtis." Billy's own ambition is to be a great concert violinist. Music is the great bond between her and Clay Curtis.

When Clay Curtis learns that STANLEY POWERS, assistant credit manager of the store, who has been rushing Billy, is invited to the Wells home for supper the night of the big celebration, he announces he will not be present. Billy is in a sulky humor when she admits Powers that evening.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IX

"WHY aren't you in 'The Pageant of Progress'?" Stanley Powers said to Billy, sitting small and demure beside him.

"I couldn't take the time off for rehearsals," Billy answered in a whisper. "Besides, I'm playing the violin later, you know. Sh-h! They're going to recite verses."

Six girls in flowing white draperies, had come dancing upon the stage, Winnie Shelton leading, holding between her hands a small placard bearing the numerals, "1895-1900." Pearl Hadley, just a little taller, and with the light playing tricks with her flaming mop of red hair, carried a slightly larger placard with the numerals, "1901-1906." Behind her came Lottie Shumate, a little taller than Pearl, with her placard testifying to the existence of the Curtis Store during the years of 1907 to 1912. Sadie Meyers, whose dark, Oriental head was carried proudly on a long slender neck, displayed her placard, "1913-1918," behind her glowing like a long, slender reed, came Susie Howard, of the misses' dresses department, with placard proof that the Curtis Store had weathered the post-war depression—1919-1924. Bringing up the rear, and dancing with slow, undulating grace, came Nydia Lomax, tallest and most barbarically beautiful of them all, holding aloft the largest of the placards, bearing the giant numerals, 1925.

When the six girls had delivered their rhyming praise to the Curtis Store and to its founder and owner, T. Q. Curtis, each one hanging her placard upon hooks caught in a long cord that hung from the back wall of the stage, the audience burst into spontaneous applause as the placards were seen to form an inverted pyramid, testifying to the wonderful growth of the Curtis Store.

"They're going to unveil the portrait," Billy whispered.

The six girls divided into two groups of three, and took their places on each side of the portrait. Then, with the Curtis band playing softly, the girls' voices rising in a badly trained but rousing chorus of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow!" six pairs of hands seized cords dangling from the veiled portrait and slowly the velvet curtains parted, revealing a life-size portrait in oils of T. Q. Curtis.

T. Q. Curtis rose from his seat on the front row and advanced to the stage.

"Seeing the years stacked up under me like that—" and he shot a quizzical glance at the portrait which formed the top of the inverted pyramid—"makes me realize that I'm getting to be an old man. Thirty years of running a dry goods store! To most of you young people, that seems like a lifetime, and I don't know but what you're right. There's nothing much that's new can happen to a man after he's fifty-three, but death—or failure in business. That picture there makes me think death is a long way off, for the artist has kindly left out all my wrinkles; in fact, if I don't watch out, I'll be thinking I look as young as that, and do something foolish."

He clumped off the stage, bowing his head a trifle.

"Old boy just ate it up, didn't he?" Stanley Powers asked under cover of the applause which he was helping to create. "They all fall for the good old applause, don't they?"

"It isn't applesauce," Billy blazed out at him fiercely.

"Ouch!" Stanley Powers ducked his head.

She heard hardly a word of the humorous one-act play that Charles rub it in that she too liked "apple sauce."

But when she was at last upon the stage, her violin tucked under her round little chin, she forgot her audience, forgot Stanley Powers and the fact that her mother would be pathetically pleased if she married him—forgot T. Q.'s strange, erratic behavior.

She played "Humoresque," knowing that it would please by its very familiarity where a piece of her own choice would bewilder them. As she played, every nerve in her body responded to the moods of the music—now lilting, now sobbing, now sad, now gay, now exultant.

Carlstrom Rules Such Practice Violation of State Laws

Springfield, Ill.—(AP)—In a series of opinions made public today, Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom definitely settled recurrent and troublesome technicalities concerning town and village offices, automobile licenses, mothers' pensions and county farm bureau property.

Replying to a communication from H. E. Fullenwider, state's attorney, Springfield, the attorney general held that the office of town clerk and village trustee are incompatible and cannot be held by one person at the same time.

If the town should have a claim against the village or the village against the town, the duties of a person holding said offices would conflict," Carlstrom declared.

Answering a query from W. W. Daily, state's attorney, McLeansboro, the attorney general gave the opinion that provisions of the Mothers' Pension Act did not extend to a situation in which a child has no living mother but resides with a grandmother.

Josef T. Skinner, state's attorney, Princeton, called attention to the practice of automobile dealers driving stock cars into the streets, removing front and rear license plates and allowing them to remain there without license until run back into the garage or show room. He asked for a construction of the Motor Vehicle Act and in complying Carlstrom held that to allow an automobile to sit on a public street without license is a violation of the law.

Property of a county farm bureau is exempt from taxation under the Revenue Act, the attorney general told Nell Kerr, state's attorney, Pontiac, "provided, that if unincorporated the bureau's property is in no way used with a view to making profit, and if incorporated, it be chartered under the not-for-profit act and its property is in no way used for the purpose of making a profit."
